The Council is withholding this information as it falls under the exemption(s) in Section 40 (2) and the first condition of subsection (3) of the Act, which relates to personal information.

The Council considers that in respect of information relating to identities and contact details of third parties and junior Council officers involved in this process, that this meets the definition for personal data set out in Section 1(1) of the Data Protection Act 1998 ("DPA") as:

"data which relate to a living individual who can be identified - (a) from those data, or (b) from those data and other information which is in the possession of, or is likely to come into the possession of, the data controller and includes any expression of opinion about the individual and any indication of the intentions of the data controller or any other person in respect of the individual."

The Council thus considers that the requested information is caught by the exemption to disclosure contained in Section 40 (2) of the Act and the related first condition of Section 40 (3).

To explain further, a disclosure made under the Act is judged to be a disclosure to the wider world and here the Council must consider disclosure of personal information in line with the provisions of the Data Protection Act.

In this instance it is judged that the personal information relating to third parties (such as staff of the settings inspected) involved and also junior Council staff undertaking inspection work for example is being processed by the Council for the purposes of Food Hygiene Inspections and not for any wider disclosure purposes.

Individuals involved would also have no reasonable expectation that their details would be disclosed to the world-at-large.

Any disclosure of this information would be judged in this instance to breach the principles of the Data Protection Act, notably the first principle - that of fair and lawful processing and the second principle - that of processing for specified and not-incompatible purposes.

This is why certain names and direct contact details have been removed in this instance.
