Footfall headlines – March 2025

- Total Coventry city centre footfall increased marginally between February 2025 and March 2025 - up by 1.2%. However, there are more days in March, so the daily average was actually 8.6% down.
- The year on year % change trends are positive – city centre visitor numbers continue to be up on the same last time last year, as they were in January and February. In total for the first 3 months of the year numbers are 11.7% up on the same time last year ('year to date').
- So, the year on year % change indicates improvement, March 2025 total footfall being 24.7% higher than it was in March 2024 – although the size of the difference this month was partly due to a particularly low March last year. We also have data for one other city centre: annual trends are similar in Leicester, footfall is up 'year on year', 22.7% higher than last year.
- To get a fuller understanding of city centre footfall, these headline visitor figures should be combined with dwell data.

Monthly Coventry city centre footfall

January 2019 to March 2025

- The post-pandemic recovery showed clear improvement up to the summer of 2023; it has fluctuated since then.
- The fact that monthly footfall has been 'up year on year' for a few months might be an indication of positive future trends to come.
- However, a key insight remains: Footfall is notably lower than pre-pandemic levels. In March 2025 it was 49.3% lower than the level in March 2019. It is also remains lower in Leicester, but by less (-31.6%).
- The gap with pre-pandemic levels is not currently closing significantly.
