

Who we are

Our Alternative Provision offers a hands-on, outdoor learning environment where young people can reconnect with education through animals, nature, practical skills, and meaningful experiences. We provide a safe, supportive space that encourages personal growth, emotional wellbeing, confidence, and independence while developing valuable life and vocational skills.

What we offer

@theland offers a diverse range of personalized courses to cater to everyone's unique learning style. We believe that education should not be one-size-fits-all and that everyone has their own path to success. That is why we offer the following opportunities that focus on gaining a wide variety of skills through meaningful activities. The areas of learning include;

- Animal care
- Ground maintenance and conservation
- Horticulture and gardening
- Farming and agriculture
- Environment and sustainability
- A range of photography, woodwork, cooking, and art
- Mindfulness and wellbeing

@theland also focuses on social and emotional skills especially for those with SEMH, by providing time spent with the animals and the outdoors coupled with projects to build self-esteem and confidence.
