Supporting School Staff

Expectations of educators have never been higher. As well as delivering aspirational teaching whilst differentiating to include all abilities, teachers regularly go beyond the classroom to support young people's social and emotional development.

As skilled applied psychologists, we can support staff to manage the demands of modern teaching and develop specialist skills in pedagogy, child development and overcoming barriers to learning.

Teacher Support Teams (TSTs)

We can train and support staff to build problem-solving teams. Once established, staff members can refer themselves for confidential peer support for professional and personal issues.

Teacher support has a marked effect on recruitment and retention in schools where it is used effectively.

Circles of Adults

Circles of Adults is a whole team problem-solving process, which can help engender a deeper understanding of a young person's needs amongst adults, develop and implement support strategies and evaluate efficacy.

Bespoke Training

Our EPs meet your training needs by designing bespoke whole-school and group INSET and Workshops.

Our training places your school at the centre and builds a programme around it.

Support to School Staff Completing MAs

Our EPs have a background in research and development, using both qualitative and quantitative approaches up to doctoral level.

Our expertise makes us well placed to help school staff to set up school-based investigations which are practical and which will impact upon school development.
